ABSTRACT

This survey, conducted by the Modern Language Association of America, of B.A. degree requirements in foreign languages is intended to supplement a survey on requirements for the B.A. degree published in 1953. The compilation of statistics, collected from questionnaires sent to 1,037 registrars of accredited four-year colleges and universities, shows that of the 760 schools offering the B.A. degree, 322 (69.2%) require foreign language study for the degree and 191 (23.1%) require foreign languages for entrance. Comparable percentages reported in the B.A. survey were 83.9% and 20.2%. Many of the institutions that do not list a foreign language requirement do expect students to complete courses in second languages for certain major fields. Institutions which may not grant the B.S. degree offer science and mathematics majors a B.A. degree; such non-liberal arts graduates are, thus, required to know foreign languages. The survey is arranged by state and then by institution with symbols indicating whether or not a requirement exists. (DS)

FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE B.S. DEGREE

Dr Wilhelm J. Wilms
A Survey Conducted for the FL Program

It [illegible] six years since the publication, by Professor William S. Parker, of the survey, "Foreign Language Entrance and Degree Requirements for the B.S. Degree" (FWLA, September 1952). The statistics gathered at that time have been frequently revised, the fifth revision having appeared in the September 1957 Supplement to FWLA. The findings published in that study have given teachers and administrators a clear picture of the national pattern of foreign language requirements for the B.S. degree.

The statistics below provide a similar picture of language requirements across the nation for the Bachelor of Science degree. The term "B.S. degree" is here used in a restricted sense referring only to the four-year liberal arts science degree, that is, the degree frequently granted to undergraduate liberal arts students who major in the principal natural sciences or in mathematics. It does not refer to specialized degrees such as the B.S. in Business Administration, the B.S. in Education, or the B.S. in Home Economics.

Questionnaires were sent by the Modern Language Association in April 1958 to registrants of 1800 accredited four-year colleges and universities. Of the 1800 institutions listed below, 637 do not offer the B.S. degree in the restricted sense explained in the preceding paragraph. Of the 968 offering the B.S. degree, 345 (or 69.3%) require foreign language study for the degree, and 131 (or 13.5%) require foreign languages for entrance. The comparable percentages for the B.S. degree are 83.9% and 29.3%. These figures do not, however, give a clear picture, since many of these institutions listed as not having a degree requirement do, in fact, have such a requirement in a number of the major fields. Some of these variations have been indicated in footnotes. It should also be kept in mind that a large number of institutions which do not grant the B.S. degree do provide majors in the sciences and in mathematics, but grant students the B.A. degree. Of the land-grant state universities, 46 out of 49 grant the B.S. degree. There is a degree requirement at 33 of these 46 state universities, and an entrance requirement at 8.

In order to facilitate comparison of this survey with the previous "B.S. study," symbols and abbreviations have been used in the same manner. Statistics before the semicolon refer always to entrance requirements; those after the semicolon, to degree requirements. A long dash (——) means that there is no requirement. The chief (/) indicates an alternative requirement ("or"). Institutions whose names appear in italic type lack the B.S. degree requirement; bracketed institutions do not offer the B.S. degree. The abbreviations and symbols used follow:

- 0 — Foreign language required for entrance.
- (1), Foreign language
- (0). Modern language (other than "0" or "1+2").
- 2 — 2 new language begun in college.
- 4+ (1), degree requirement may be satisfied wholly or in part by high-school (1), units, [incoming student is assigned automatically to an appropriate class unless "4+" is followed by "(0)."]
- (1) — Placement tests are used to check foreign language proficiency at entrance for assignment to an appropriate class.
- (1+) — Proficiency examinations are used also or in combination with college (1), courses to determine whether students have met the (1), degree requirement. "(1+)" indicated as an alternative to a specific degree requirement means an incoming student may satisfy the entire (1), degree requirement by passing a proficiency examination.
- q — (after a numeral) hours according to the quarter system.
- s — (after a numeral) hours according to the semester system.
- u — (after a numeral) units of high school work in foreign language required for entrance.

In all cases of a foreign language required for entrance, the statements below of the degree requirement (i.e., the credit hours noted after the semicolon) is to be understood as a requirement in addition to the units required for entrance when the student continues the same language in college. If he starts a new language in college, the somewhat larger degree requirements will be indicated with the letter "N" preceding.

[1] Except in Mathematics.
[2] Beginning in September 1999, students must complete at least 1 year (a.u.) in a PE, or take 1 year (a.u.) in a PE, or Agriculture as an extra graduation requirement.
[3] Effective September 1999.
[4] In the Pre-Medical curriculum, Ida of French or German are required; Elementary Ida of Sciences, Mathematics, as an extension.
[5] Requirement because effective for entering freshmen in 1999-00.
[6] Ida alternatives, open to some science students, allows for substitution of advanced work in English language, composition or acquisition.
[7] Three years out of 5 for B.S. degree requires PE credits
